ABSTRACT

Literature holds mirror up to the nature. Society on the other hand, provides variety of topics to the literary artists. The men of literature in every generation have tried to narrate the prevailing conditions in society in those respective times. These artists feed us and enrich our aesthetic sense as well as our critical thinking. The Corona Virus has affected the whole universe. Books of all types are sure to come up dealing with this sudden and unexpected outbreak. There would definitely be the wave of books on COVID-19 Pandemic, its nature, its effect on human world and its after effects. There will be a flood of such books including novels, non-fictional books, collections of poems, case studies, diaries, dramas, short stories, biographies and autobiographies that would deal with Corona virus and the panic it created among human beings. Many of them may prove wrong in their predictions, but they would paint the picture of happy society after the pandemic. After all, literature does not need to prove its accuracy on scientific scales; it has its own standards governed by the rule of poetic justice. They would use their poetic abilities and literary talent to provide solutions to many unanswered questions about the virus.

Introduction

The saplings of literature sprout from society. The seeds of every theory, philosophy and text lay scattered in society. These seeds emanate from various movements, events, undercurrents, evolutions and other actions that are constantly taking place- naturally and artificially- in nature. Those who possess the gifts of literary abilities pick them up as material for their writings and go on expressing the causes, nature and effects of all such active factors in society. These factors do not remain permanent; rather they go on changing constantly. Hence, literature remains the faithful mirror reflecting nature in its essence with variety of topics. Accordingly, themes and subjects of literature vary with the changing circumstances. This has been happening from time immemorial. The men of literature in every generation have tried to narrate the prevailing conditions in society in those respective times. That is why we can easily understand the historical and sociological aspects of society by studying literature of a particular period.

Man has been instrumental for change in every period of history. The changes occurring in every age have affected the lives of human beings and changed their approach towards nature. We study this approach of human beings through literature. Almost all the aspects of human nature get reflected in literature. Man is a social animal. So the socio-cultural behavioural aspects also are found in literature. Whether serene or turbulent, human life gets mirrored in literature; the humane and cruel parts of human nature become the part of literature. The social surroundings, cultural and religious traditions and economical upheavals all are narrated to their intense depth in literature. Thus, literature represents society in true sense. Society on the other hand, provides variety of topics to the literary artists, or rather we may say that the sense of minute observation among these litterateurs captures every aspect even from the remotest part of the society. They focus on topics that touch their creative sense, dissect and evaluate different layers among those topics and bring forward to enrich the knowledge of the posterity. In short, these artists feed us and enrich our aesthetic sense as well as our critical thinking.

Impact of COVID- 19 on Society

The crisis of COVID-19 Pandemic is destined to serve innumerable topics to these artists. The unexpected events such as this occur rarely in the course of human lives, but when they occur, they create history. Naturally, such universal crises affect human society to a great extent and there are long lasting effects of such occurrences. The Corona Virus has affected the whole universe. It has its effect equally on the rich and the poor, the learned and the illiterate. The greatest superpowers of the world have suffered badly during this pandemic. The most advanced countries are feeling helpless while facing the challenges created by the virus. Millions of people have fallen prey to the
